- Participate in an interview. Offer yourself as an expert to be quoted in an article or news piece. Use your expertise to educate the public.

- Ask your mayor (or work with your state association to ask your governor) to sign a proclamation honoring April as OT Month; then send out a press release right away announcing it to local media. For a sample proclamation, go to www.aota.org/OTMonth.

- Open your facility for tours, OT practice demonstrations, or receptions to give others first-hand insight into what occupational therapy practitioners do.
- Get permission to host an information booth about occupational therapy at the entrance to a college campus, local mall, or other public location and be prepared to clearly explain the role of OT in daily activities.
- Give out 2019 OT Month buttons, pens, travel mugs, or other products to staff, clients, family members, or professional associates. Consider a shirt or tote bag as a premium gift.
