Celebrate occupational therapy throughout April and all year by sharing the value of your profession through special events, messages, and products. Here are a few ideas to share with your colleagues, and to help you come up with even more.

Find more at www.aota.org/otmonth.

PROMOTING OT ONLINE

- Use social media, such as Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, LinkedIn, and other social media sites. Share fact sheets, tip sheets, and links to other resources. Participate in a health care–related Twitter chat and share how OT can help people across the lifespan. Be sure to use the hashtag #OTMonth.
- Follow AOTA on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram to learn about easy ways to promote the profession during April—including using the OT profile frame!
- Share AOTA’s “What OT Can Do” video: April is a great time to share our powerful video describing how occupational therapy helped clients return to their valued activities and occupations. www.aota.org/whatotcando.
- Sign your e-mails with a tag line that promotes public awareness, such as:
Occupational Therapy: Living Life To Its Fullest®

April is OT Month

PROMOTING OT IN THE NEWS

- Write to a news outlet. Most print and online news outlets accept letters to the editor and guest columns. OT Month is a great time to submit one about occupational therapy. Be sure to check the outlet’s guidelines.
- Share a photo or video clip. Many television and web outlets accept photos and video clips of local events and success stories. Just be sure to get your subjects’ permission.
- Pitch a story. Contact a producer, editor, or reporter at your local news outlet and offer a story idea. Success stories are great ways to share the power of occupational therapy with a large audience.
- Participate in an interview. Offer yourself as an expert to be quoted in an article or news piece. Use your expertise to educate the public.

Take time to check out the wide variety of experiences and get ideas for how you can promote the profession in a way that works for you. Have questions? Want to share your own ideas? Go to www.CommunOT.org and tell us what you think!

REMEMBER, YOU ARE A CHAMPION FOR OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY. HELP SPREAD THE WORD!

ORDER ONLINE AT www.promoteOT.com

- Ask your mayor (or work with your state association to ask your governor) to sign a proclamation honoring April as OT Month; then send out a press release right away announcing it to local media. For a sample proclamation, go to www.aota.org/OTMonth.
- For a video and ideas on how to promote the profession to the public, visit www.aota.org/Practice/Manage/Promote.aspx.
- Check out AOTA's newest tip sheet on promoting OT to the public through the media at www.aota.org/media-tips.

PROMOTING OT TO THE COMMUNITY

- Offer to speak to local groups such as area agencies on aging, parent-teacher associations, Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club, Rotary, etc., to let them know how occupational therapy services can help families in any number of ways. Use AOTA's presentation resources.
- Open your facility for tours, OT practice demonstrations, or receptions to give others first-hand insight into what occupational therapy practitioners do.
- Get permission to host an information booth about occupational therapy at the entrance to a college campus, local mall, or other public location and be prepared to clearly explain the role of OT in daily activities.
- Distribute 2020 OT Month buttons, pens, travel mugs, or other products to staff, clients, family members, or professional associates. Consider a shirt or tote bag as a premium gift.
